SATOLLI LAUDS THE PRESS. "It is the public press which has the most general and efficacious influence in constructing, moderating, keeping alive and modifying, when the necessity requires, public opinion. It is a question whether law depends on the social dispositions of the people or whether the social dispositions depend on the law. In my opinion the de-pendence is mutual, and consequently the legislative power cannot hold itself independent of nor indifferent to the popular opinion which manifests itself moderating, keeping alive and modifying, when necessity requires, public opinion;" not in this country, at least, whatever it may be in Italy. I take it for granted that by "the press" is meant the newspaper press of the country.

In the second place, it is not "a question whether law depends on the social dispositions of the people or whiter the social dispositions of the people depend that "the legislative power"—here or elsewhere—can not hold itself inde-pendent of nor indifferent to the popu lar opinion, which manifests itself through the press, then the legislative power had better sell out openly and at once to the devil and his angels, and let hell itself rule this nation and this earth openly and without rebuke from any

Regarding the first part of the papal legate's proposition, if he had studied these last thirty years or these last ten years, as I have studied these last forty years, the relation of the results of our popular elections to the influence of the supposed most potent newspapers in the country at large or in any particu-lar State or leading city of this land, he would have learned that the so-called popular verdict can seldom, if ever, be traced to any direct or indirect influence of the popular press upon this popular verdict. In a word, the popular verdict, so-called, usually flies in the face of the most influential press opinion. So the facts of history are against of God in this world-of which church Mgr. Satolli is the honored representa-

-that in any great emergencies, as in cases of mobs, wars, strikes, etc., the press is simply a babbling, baby newsmonger as to the casualties, and very interesting as such, but quite as powerless as a child to arouse, supress, con trol or in any serious way modify the popular impulses and tides of the times; and I confess myself utterly amazed to find what I supposed to be an acute-thinking, even deep-thinking, man, and the special envoy of his holiness, the Pope, to this country, indulging in such utterly shallow and ill-informed opinions, and still more amazed at the easy confidence with which he expresses the osition, which is more abstract and less capable of popular handling, if it be a question whether law-any law, human or divine—"depends on the social dis-positions of the people," etc., or not, then the powers that be, which, according to St. Paul, are ordained of God, had better immediately abdicate-French man-like-and let the mob trample our courts of justice into hell-fire and spit upon our sacred altars. No, no, Mon-signor, law is made of sterner stuff than the social dispositions of the people; and if you have not gone deep enough into the secrets of nature and revelation and history to know better than this, had better prolong your studies before uttering yourself in the public press of this country again. I am grieved to say these things. Next to the holy father himself, I honor this man in his own appointed sphere; but in the name of the intelligent and keen-witted Catholic clergy and laymen of this land, I can not see the chosen representative of his holiness falling into the hands of the demon of modern offering a respectful protest. The third part of the objectionable paragraph I consider the most dangerous and pernicious of all. That our legislative assemblies in State and nation are hoodwinked by the press at times and bribed by vari-ous hirelings of upstart powers, bought outright and controlled utterly by the plutocracy of the day, dictated to by domestic and foreign bankers, and driven, like dumb asses or oxen, by the lash of the money power, I am sad to admit; and any man who knows the press of this country—or of England, France or Germany—knows that to a very great extent it is a purchasable quantity in the money markets of the world. But for the papal legate, with the immense prestige and power back of him which his position presumes, to say practically that these things should be so "That the larielative near the legislative MEDICINAL.

Brown's Iron Bitters

"About 9 or 10 years ago I was broken down in health and suffered from extreme nervousness, and severe neuralgic pains afflicted different parts of my body— sometimes the dreadful pain would be in my eyes and head, sometimes in my hand and often in my shoulders and neck. I took many remedies, but found none like Brown's Iron Bitters, I have used a few bottles every year since. I often praise it to others."

everybody out of his teens knows to be a government of plutocrats, by pluto-crats and for plutocrats, pandered to and flattered by a hireling press in the service of plutocrats,—to hint, I say, that this state of things is according to reason, justice and necessity, is to own Bob Ingersoll's idea of the impotence of God Almighty and to abdicate the sacred temples of law, of justice, and, very soon, of faith, to the absolute and inevitable control of perdition. For one I protest against such teachings and such a consummation.

In conclusion, I beg to assure Mgr Satolli that if he is looking for the approval of the press of this country he will have to trim his sails to its ignorant but brilliant prejudices and give up all thought of being a representative of the Son of God. Again I protest my unbounded reverence for this man in his own sphere. But he has not been long enough in this country to understand the genius of our people or the genius of the press, and he seems very badly to need better advisers than he has hitherto found,—W. H. Thorne, caitor of the Globe.

Again, did the so-called popular verdict, as a rule, sustain his proposition, it would be a sorry comment upon the master force of the one infallible church croup and whooping cough; that it croup and whooping cough; that it cures these ailments quickly and per manently, and that it is pleasant and safe for children to take. 25 and 50 the said lots of ground belonging.
